

THE BASRA BUNGLER

Jobs Page

Focus on the RAF

Wannabe infanteers?

Do you lack charisma, tactical knowledge and capacity to lead more than a company of men? Then why not join the RAF Regt. Yes, in the RAF Regt you don't even need to know how to map read, the perimeter fence of the airfield is all you have to follow. And, because your service doesn't have a clue about real soldiering, they'll fund your shiny new Wimics whilst the proper foot soldiers have to patrol Basra in clapped out old equipment.

RAF REGIMENT

Because guarding airfields is all Rockapes do.

Required, individuals without any verbal capacity to serve in the Force Protection Wing

In the Force Protection Wing you will face many challenges including

- Making announcements about how hot it is at the hottest time of the day
- Informing people of mortar attacks following loud and audible explosions
- Waking people from their sleep at 3 am to remind them, it's 'All clear'
- Repeating yourself again and again, as if we hadn't heard you the first fucking time.

For application forms, apply at the Force Protection Office, I repeat, for application forms, apply at the Force Protection Office, end of broadcast.

Are you interested in working to provide high quality aerial transportation to serving troops under difficult conditions?

Do you thrive on putting yourself out in order to ensure that Tommy Atkins is delivered home in a safe and timely manner?

Will you work every hour that God sends to ensure that your service is respected by its two senior counterparts?

Then you can fuck off, because RAF Transport Command doesn't need you.

RAF: The skies would be the limit, but they're a bit cloudy, so we're not flying today.
